ACED has more than 400 Chinese professionals in Denmark working in a large number of Danish companies, universities and governmental institutions.

ACED is the Chair Association of Federation of Chinese Professional Associations in Europe (FCPAE) in 2010 and 2016.

Our Members

- More than 400 members
- More than 100 professors and senior professionals
- 25% members holding Ph.D. degrees
- More than 90% members holding master degrees or higher

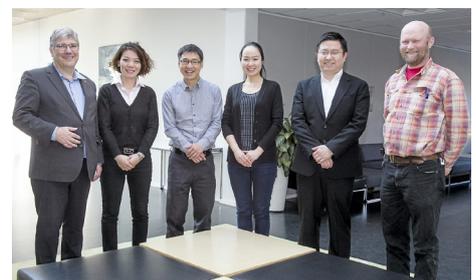

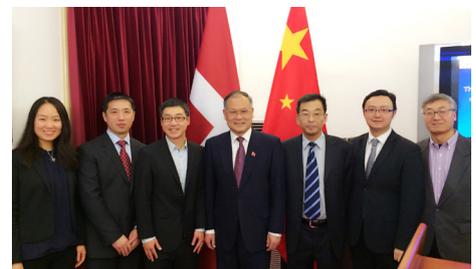

Our Aim

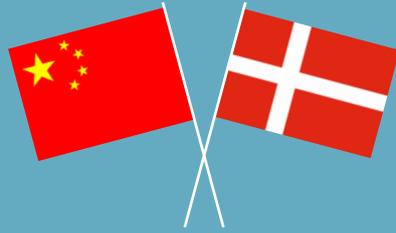

The aim of ACED is to assist its members integrating into Danish society, and bring Chinese professionals in Denmark together with Danish companies and organizations for comprehensive communication in areas such as talent pipeline, mutual cultural understanding as well as business and technological cooperation.

Our Events

ACED arranges both professional and social events in order to promote:

- Communication among its members with relevant Danish companies and organizations;
- Engagement in Danish culture and society;
- Development of its members careers as well as business and technological co-operations between China and Denmark.

Association of Chinese Experts in Denmark (former name: Association of Chinese Engineers in Denmark), abbreviation ACED, was established on September 24, 2000 in Copenhagen, Denmark. It is an independent and non-profit organization for engineers and professionals, who have Chinese background and live in Denmark.

With the aims of Communication, Engagement, and Development, ACED mainly focuses on connecting Chinese professionals, by providing a social networking platform to facilitate communication among Chinese professionals and integration with the Danish society. Meanwhile, ACED also cooperate with other local and international organizations to start the events among Chinese and Danish professionals. For those who are studying or working in Denmark and are interested in doing better socializing in Denmark, ACED is an ideal society to join.

Among many exciting initiatives, ACED arranges both professional and spare-time activities, to help its members better communicating with relevant societies, institutions, companies, and authorities in Denmark, to help its members being better aware of the development of science and technology that is taking place both in China and in Denmark, to help its members finding assistance concerning various laws and regulations.
